

So Everyday

Interviews with Academic Researchers to Understand their Day-to-Day

Erin Eldermire, Head, Cornell Veterinary Library

Neely Tang, Off-Site Public Services Librarian, Cornell Management Library

CornellUniversityLibrary

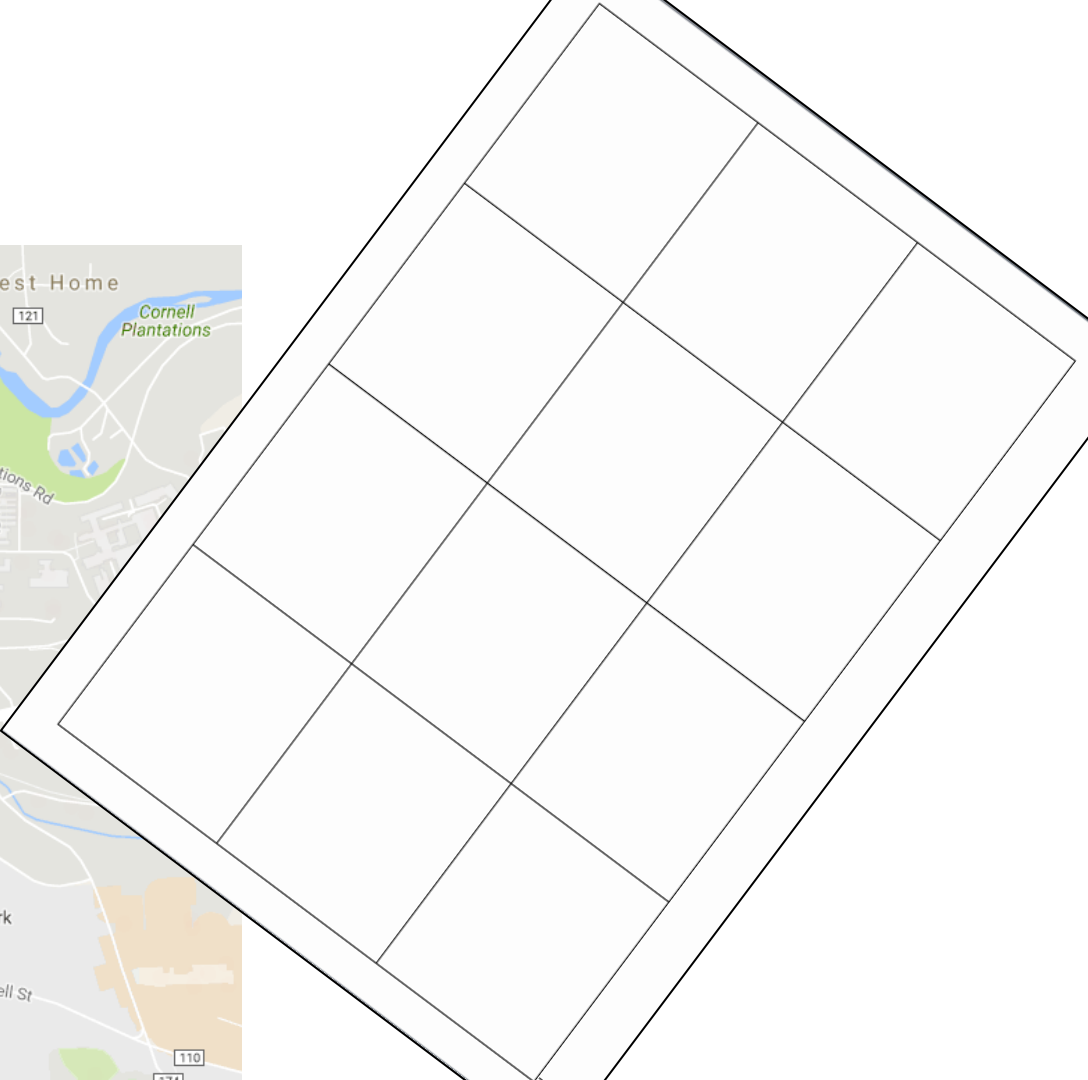

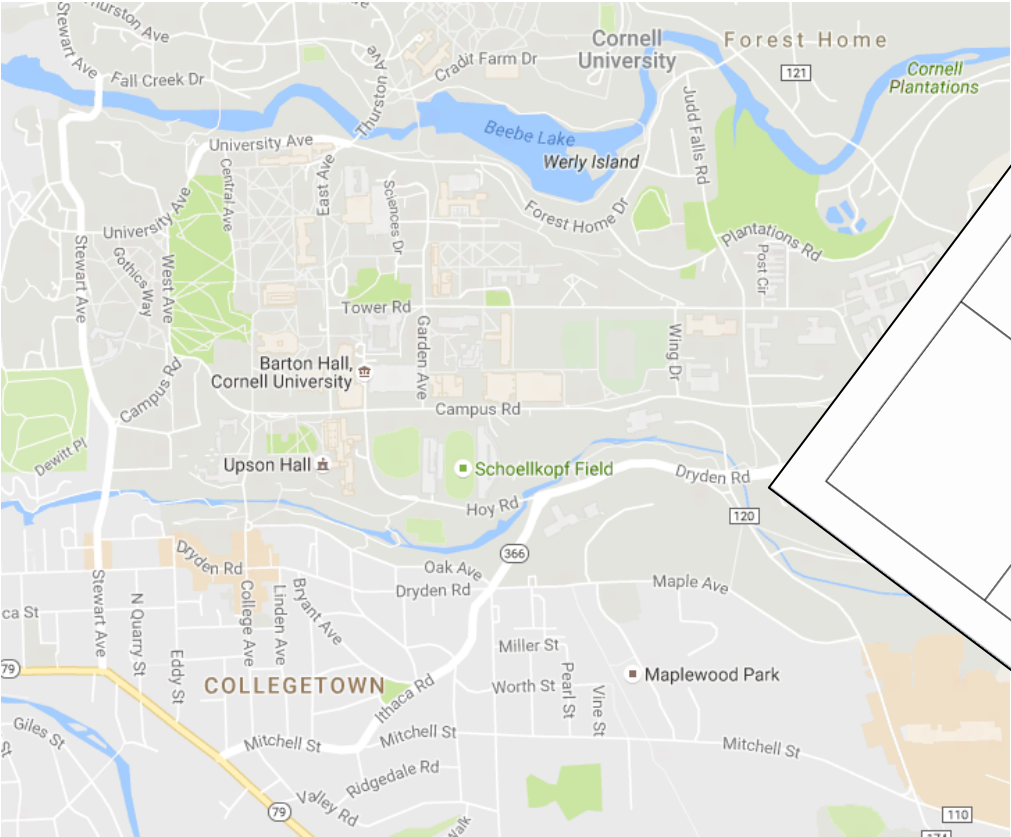

The day-to-day life of a researcher and the Library

Just ask

Interview methods

Making sense of it all paste the full citation, [LAUGH] but usually, it's very unlikely, so one reviewer did the last, Battle, et. al, 2015, I was like, great. So I, plugged it into pub med, no luck, Google scholar finally come up with something. So that's when I found the paper, but it was not, yeah, it's very not helpful how they did that.

CORNELL INTERVIEW 04_MAR2 [00:07:06]

INTERVIEWEE 4: Other papers, they'll be like, oh, they might give the journal at least, so I can figure out a little bit faster. Just working from home usually though, I try to go through pub med, 'cause, depending, I haven't even tried the proxy yet through Cornell Tech, but it's usually a span, so I just, Pub Med's a lot easier, and it works a lot better.

MODERATOR: Okay. So did you do that from 10:05 until Noon?

B W INTERVIEWEE 4: Yes, it was a lot of... it was two sets of reviewer, on very [INAUDIBLE] it's like literally going through, I did a point by point breakdown, of all of their comments, and I was going through finding like, the relevant papers, and actually going back and editing the paper, so

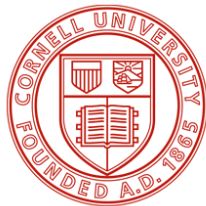

Surprises

Conclusions

Thank you!

CornellUniversityLibrary

Erin Eldermire
erb29@cornell.edu

Neely Tang
nt243@cornell.edu

